NUMB. 3085

SATURDAY, JANUARY 27, 1744

Rome, January 4.

WE have had this Week no Letters from Naples, which has occasioned great Speculation; tho' such as are no Politicians, incline to ascribe it to a great Fall of Snow, which has, in some Measure, rendered the Roads impassable. What makes many People uneasy, who are of the Spanish Party, is the reported Intelligence we have had from thence, that they are certainly on the Eve of some great Event. The Nobility are full of Intrigues; the People universally discontented; the Army raw and undisciplined; and even those in the Administration very little pleased with being under the Necessity of acting just at their Instructions from Madrid direct. In this Situation, there is nobody dares tell the King his Danger; tho', in many Respects, he has shewn himself a good-natur'd and well-meaning Prince. If once the Germans enter his Dominions, it is thought he will find himself under very great Difficulties; for it is known that a great Part of the new-raised Troops would either disband, or desert; and upon a Representation of this Matter to the Count de Gages, he has delayed his Retreat into Naples as long as he could. It is now thought, and with Reason, that he can delay it no longer; since the English Ships on our Coasts will speedily put it out of his Power to get Provisions of any Sort.

Frankfort, January 20. The Landgrave William of Hesse-Cassel is returned from Berlin, perfectly well satisfied with the Reception he met with there, and with the Disposition of the King of Prussia to support his Imperial Majesty. We have some News from Bavaria that is not pleasing; several Prelates are determined to try if it be not possible to obtain an Alteration of the Government settled in that Electorate, which is burdensome beyond Description, and which tends only to make the People more and more uneasy. We have an Account from the Brigau, that some of the Austrian Soldiers have actually found Ways and Means to get over the Ice, and have done some Mischief in Alsace; but what alarms us more, is, that we have daily Accounts of Depredations committed in the Dominions of different Princes, by a Body of Men who call themselves French Hussars, but who are now discovered to be downright Thieves. This Party consists of near 300 Men, and are like to do a great deal of Mischief.

Rome, January 25. We have Advice from Constantinople, by the Way of Venice, that the Affairs of the Porte are in great Confusion. The present Grand Vizir is not inclined to put himself at the Head of the Army, from an Apprehension that he should be speedily deposed when at a Distance from thence. The People are more inclined to Sedition than ever; and while the Government is pressed for Money, to supply the Expense of the Persian War, it is constrained to part with considerable Sums, in order to prevent Tumults. Bashaw Osman, formerly Count Bonneval, has contributed not a little to these Disorders by his Intrigues; but, at present, he seems to have quite lost his Interest; and there is the utmost Reason to believe, that the Porte will never trust to his Councils, much less incline to put him at the Head of the Army, the Post to which he aspires. The late Grand Vizir is said to be at Aleppo, and his Successor in that Office would willingly consent to his being at the Head of the Army; but he has the Misfortune to be upon bad Terms with the Janizaries, who have even gone so far as to declare, that they would not serve under his Command. It is certain, that the Shah Nadir lost a great many Men before Mousul, but it is very far from being as certain, that he has been obliged to retreat. The Couriers from Asia are carried directly to the Seraglio; and are allowed to speak with nobody till they are dispatched back again; which looks as if they brought no good News, and as if the Army of the Grand Signor was not in a Condition to act offensively; or, however, given out, to keep the People quiet.

IRELAND.

Extra from the Votes of the House of Commons.
January 11. Order'd, That Charles Hamilton of Dunboyne, Esq; (a Member of this House) have Leave to appear as an Evidence before the Lords, if he thinks fit, at the Trial of Lord Viscount Netterville.
Order'd, That a Committee be appointed to enquire how far Hugh Boyde, Esq; hath fulfilled his Contract with the Nation, for making an Harbour at Ballycastle, and how the Money granted for that Purpose hath been expended.

Near, January 12. This Day the Hon. James Annesley, Esq; stopp'd here in his Way to the County of Wexford, accompanied by a great many Gentlemen, and a numerous Retinue. He was received with all possible Demonstrations of Joy by this Town; and, during the short time he stay'd, the Streets were throng'd with People, who came to welcome, and pay their Compliments to him.

Dublin, January 13. The following Commissions have been brought to the Secretary's Office to be entered.

William Montgomery, Gent. to be Lieutenant in the Second Battalion of Major-General St. Clair's Regiment of Foot, in the room of James Sutherland, Gent. deceased.

LONDON.

The Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor has presented the Rev. Thomas Birch, M.A. to the Rectory of Saddington St. Mary, in the County of Gloucester; as likewise to the Vicarage of St. Peter, in the said County.

Yesterday Morning died suddenly, Mr. Jaconiah Ashley, Goldsmith, over-against the new Church in the Strand.

The same Day died, at his Father's House in Scotland Yard, Mr. Phillips, Son of Mr. Phillips, Carpenter to his Majesty.

There was a very good and numerous Appearance of the Nobility and Gentry Yesterday at Leicester House, to pay their Compliments to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, on account of his Birth-day.

Yesterday Philip Mulgrave was committed to Wood-street Compter by Sir John Salter, for violently assaulting Mr. Paine, a Goldsmith, near his own House in Cheap-side, last Thursday Night, and knocking him down; whereby he lost his Hat, and was very much bruised.

As was likewise Thomas Smith, for violently assaulting one Pitt-Roy, beating him in a cruel manner, and putting out one of his Eyes.
